

ask that the U.S. House of Representatives join me in commemorating 100 years of scouting.

The Boy Scouts of America was created on February 8, 1910 with a purpose of teaching young men patriotism, courage, self-reliance and kindred values. By 1912, Boy Scouts were in every state, and in 1916 Congress granted the Boy Scouts of America a federal charter.

Across the country, every Boy Scouts council commits each scout to perform 12 hours of community service a year, totaling 30 million hours of community service annually. In addition to the commitment young men show to scouting, more than 1 million adult scout leaders are selflessly serving young people in their communities through organizations chartered by the Boy Scouts of America.

As an Eagle Scout myself, I have a special appreciation for the rich history and tradition of scouting that has touched so many lives over the past 100 years. The lessons young men learn as scouts help guide them throughout their lives.

In scouting, you learn to do a good deed everyday. The world would be a better place if we all lived by this simple creed. In scouting, you learn to leave your campsite in better shape than you found it. Many scouts grow up to be leaders in their communities or here in the United States Congress and strive to leave things better than they found them.

For a century now, scouting has helped to instill in young men the values of good conduct, respect for others and honesty. Scouting has taught young men skills that will last a lifetime, including basic outdoors skills, first aid, citizenship, leadership, and how to get along with others. Scouting teaches the values and knowledge to become leaders in our communities and our country.

Madam Speaker, the lives of millions of young men, including many members of this chamber, have benefited from their experiences in scouting. Too often, the valuable contribution of scouting to our communities and to the development of future leaders goes unrecognized. As the Hiawathaland Council gathers in Marquette, Michigan this weekend to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the Boy Scouts of America, I ask that you, Madam Speaker, and the entire U.S. House of Representatives join me in congratulating the Boy Scouts of America on 100 years of scouting.

HOME STAR ENERGY RETROFIT ACT OF 2010

SPEECH OF

HON. ROSA L. DeLAURO

OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, May 6, 2010

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 5019) to provide for the establishment of the Home Star Retrofit Rebate Program, and for other purposes:

Ms. DELAURO. Madam Chair, I rise in support of the Home Star Energy Retrofit Act, an important, commonsense bill that will help promote energy efficiency, conserve our resources, spur job creation and the green economy, and save Americans money.

In my home State, excellent efficiency programs like the Connecticut Energy Efficiency Fund have helped to reduce energy demand, improve air quality, and deliver savings of $3 to $4 to customers for every $1 invested. That is why they enjoy the support of business, industrial, commercial, low-income, consumer, and environmental advocates alike.

By taking the idea national, and offering rebates for energy-saving home retrofits like insulation and duct sealing, the bill will create over 168,000 jobs across the country for electrical workers.

I want to thank Mr. WELCH and Chairmen WAXMAN and MARKEY for working with Congresswoman CHELLIE PINGREE and I to include language requiring Home Star implementers to coordinate with existing State efforts like the CEEF. This will help ensure that leading States like Connecticut can maximize their impact, using both State and Federal resources, when it comes to energy efficiency.

This is a great bill, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

TRIBUTE TO PATRICIA'S MEXICAN RESTAURANT ON ITS 25TH ANNI- VERSARY

HON. IKE SKELTON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, May 13, 2010

Mr. SKELTON. Madam Speaker, it was recently brought to my attention that Patricia's Mexican Restaurant in Sedalia, Missouri, is celebrating its 25th year in business. Let me take this opportunity to congratulate the owners of Patricia's, Patricia Ives and Gary Farr, for operating such a thriving business for so many years.

Pat Ives, who is originally from Creighton, Missouri, first started a business in Sedalia as the owner of a Mexican restaurant franchise known as El Sambre, which was located in Liberty Plaza. In 1993, she bought the rights to the restaurant and changed its name to Patricia's Mexican Restaurant. In 1990, Pat's son, Gary Farr, joined his mother in running the restaurant, which moved from Liberty Plaza to a new, architecturally unique building in 1998.

Pat and Gary have run their successful restaurant with a great deal of common sense and a compassion for their employees and for their community.

They care genuinely about the people who help them operate their restaurant. This kindness has generated deep loyalty among their workforce and among those who have worked at Patricia's Mexican Restaurant through the years. By encouraging hard work and the development of good people skills, Pat and Gary have helped transform many young Missourians, the restaurant's first-time workers, into responsible citizens. Many of these folks are now contributing within their own communities and to our country.

Pat and Gary are good employers, which is why it is no surprise that they have been in business for 25 years. I know my fellow colleagues in the House of Representatives will join me in paying tribute to Patricia's Mexican Restaurant on its important milestone and in honoring all who have worked for Pat Ives and Gary Farr through the years.
